

Trying to mitigate radio interference is not an option and 04-37 does a poor job by throwing the burden to the consumer who may suffer from it. These devices as described in 04-37 are broadband radio transmitters and should be brought under compliance rules for such devices.